

With Your Prayerful Partnership,
The Jesuits Are Changing the World

Together, we are . . .

educating the urban poor. We serve inner city families at or near the poverty level, offering hope for a brighter future through the success of schools such as: Cristo Rey Jesuit High School (Chicago), Loyola High School (Detroit), St. Martin De Porres High School (Cleveland), Christ the King Jesuit College Preparatory School (Chicago), and Chicago Jesuit Academy.

reflecting on our work. Ignatian Volunteer Corps (adults over age 50) and Jesuit Volunteer Corps (young adults) members serve the poor and promote justice through Catholic and social service agencies, while reflecting on these profound experiences.

listening and providing a ministerial presence. The Warming Center at SS. Peter and Paul Parish in downtown Detroit and the Claver Jesuit Mission in the Winton Hills and South Cumminsville communities of Cincinnati serve the poor both materially and spiritually.

offering opportunities to serve the poor in India, Nepal, Peru, and Africa through education and social justice initiatives that address problems at their root causes.

ministering to the sick. We have served at the John H. Stroger, Jr., Hospital as chaplains for more than 100 years.

celebrating the Eucharist. We minister to families at St. Procopius Parish on Chicago's South Side.

Alexander Wainaina, SJ, as part of his formation, uses his expertise as a medical doctor to treat children who are HIV positive at the Lea Toto clinic in Kibera in Nairobi, Kenya.

Fr. James Hasse, SJ, at the Claver Jesuit Ministry in Cincinnati, Ohio.

Jesuits serving at the Virgin of Nazareth Parish in Lima, Peru, celebrate Mass.

Fr. Terry Charlton, SJ, is the co-founder of St. Aloysius Gonzaga Secondary School, serving HIV/AIDS orphans in Nairobi, Kenya.

Loyola High School in Detroit serves young men who face the challenges of an urban environment and who are serious about their future. All members of Loyola's eleven graduating classes have been accepted into at least one college or university. They are finding ongoing success in the classroom and in the workplace.

IVC volunteers Dick Johnston (right) and John Meade assist clients seeking aid from the Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program.

Over 10 years ago, Fr. Bill Creed, SJ, began the Ignatian Spirituality Project, which serves homeless men and women in recovery from addiction by offering an adapted version of the Spiritual Exercises. The retreats have helped many homeless find God, and a path toward employment and a home.

Nepal's St. Xavier Social Service Center cares for disabled, homeless, orphaned, and drug-addicted children. Founded in 1970 by the late Fr. Tom Gafney, SJ, the Jesuits continue to serve the disabled in Nepal today.
